

INTRODUCTION

Little drops of water,
Little grains of sand,
Make the mighty ocean
And the mighty land.

Likewise

Little scraps of paper
That in this book may be,
Make an interesting history
Of the mighty R. Y. C.

Little by little and bit by bit,
As these pages o'er you turn,
Of members, officers, committees,
And chief events you'll learn.

Then too, there are the details
Regarding the club house new,
And a few remarks to introduce the Commodore
And the Flagship "Alice II."

For the friends of the Commodore who know him well
'Tis not necessary to explain
That for any words of praise herein they find,
He is no way to blame.

But for those who perhaps
To doubt may be inclined,
I cross my heart and hope to die,
The blame is mine - all mine.

Programs, letters, notices, and
Newspaper clippings too,
Explain the chief activities
Of nineteen twenty-two.

In likewise detailed manner,
To date for 'twenty-three,
You will find full information
Of the doings of R. Y. C.

And in the future we intend
To add much more to this,
From month to month and year to year
Not one thing will we miss.

Though some are only scraps of paper
That in this book you meet,
You must admit they've done their bit
In making it complete.

Now just a word to you dear readers,
Whoever you may be,
May its reading give you the pleasure
That its writing has given me.
